FOREWORD

INTRODUCTION. Thinking and writing on the past in Africa

Introduction. A. Livingstone Smith & S. MacEachern
Recovering the African past: looking back from the present. J. Sutton
Archaeology in Africa: who or what sets the agenda? S. K. McIntosh
Academic research in West Africa: the case of Senegal. M. Sall
African perspectives on academic research: the case of Cameroon. C. Mbida Mindzie

CHAPTER 1. How do archaeologists plan projects in Africa?

Introduction. A. Livingstone Smith
Organising an international archeological research project in Africa. A. Haour and D. N’Dah
Cultural heritage management in Africa. P. Mitchell
Case study: heritage management in Central Africa. N. Arazi
Rescue and preventive archeology: roads, thermal power stations and quarries. R. Oslisly
Managing cultural heritage in Africa: a study of IFAN in Senegal. I. Thiaw
Relations with local communities. N. David

CHAPTER 2. Finding and describing archaeological sites

Introduction. A. Livingstone Smith
Archeological exploration in an urban African context: Bangui. A. J.-P. Ndanga
Case study: rainforest. M. K. H. Eggert
Field survey in the Sahel: an informal guide. K. MacDonald
Ancient polities: archaeological survey in a metropolis. A.Ogundiran & B. Agbaje-Williams
Surveying towns. J. Fleisher
Archaeological field survey and the recording and cataloguing of archaeological materials. P. J. Lane
Large scale reconnaissance and excavation strategy on the Loango Coast. J. Denbow
Case study: participating as a student in an impact assessment. P. Nlend
Surveying funerary sites. I. Ribot
Finding rock art. B. Smith
CHAPTER 3. How to protect archaeological sites

Introduction. A. Livingstone Smith 101
The excavation of Stone Age sites. R. Vogelsang 104
Village sites. H.-P. Wotzka 109
The pit: archaeological excavation and analysis. A. Assoko Ndong 116

Recording rock art. B. Smith 138
Documenting and studying a rock-art site: the Lovo massif. G. Heimlich 142
Rock art management and conservation. B. Smith 146

CHAPTER 4. Analysis of materials 149

Introduction. A. Livingstone Smith 150
From the field to the lab. D. Bosquet 152
Cataloguing finds. S. Ozainne 157
Making sense of lithics. N. Taylor 163
A case study: analyzing lithics from Shum Laka, NW province, Cameroon. E. Cornelissen 168
Pottery analysis. A. Livingstone Smith & C. de Francquen 173
Defining pottery styles. T. Huffman 180
Iron objects. D. Killick 187
Copper. L. Garenne-Marot 190
Case study: copper ingots in Central Africa. N. Nikis 197

CHAPTER 5. Ecofacts and related studies 203

Introduction. E. Cornelissen 204
Archaeobotanical remains. A. Höhn 206
Archaeozoology in Sub-Saharan Africa. W. Van Neer 210
Case study: domesticated or wild? V. Linseele 214
Soil cover in Central Africa. D. Schwartz 218
Case study in a Sudano-Saharan fluvial setting. M. Rasse 223
Human remains. I. Crevecœur 228
Radiocarbon dating. P. de Maret 232
By means of example: Interpreting C14 dates. E. Cornelissen, P. de Maret & D. K. Wright 236
Other radiometric methods of dating. D. K. Wright 237
Relative dating methods. D. K. Wright 243
CHAPTER 6. From present to past
Introduction. O. P. Gosselain
The direct historical approach. A. B. Stahl
Oral tradition. D. Schoenbrun
Historical Linguistics. K. Bostoen
The ‘words and things’ method. B. Ricquier
Artworks. J. Polet
Ethnoarchaeology. D. Lyons
Pottery and oral history in the Faro. A. Mezop Temgoua-Noumissing
Architecture. V. Brunfaut & J.-F. Pinet
Ceramic technology between past and present. A. Mayor
Comparative technology. O. P. Gosselain
Genetics and African archaeology. S. MacEachern

CHAPTER 7. Publishing archaeological research results
Introduction. I. Gérard
Preparing a manuscript and the process of peer-review. P. Robertshaw
Where to publish? Elena A.A. Garcea
On-line publication and Open Access. J.-P. Devroey

CHAPTER 8. Afterword
The future of the past on the African continent. P. de Maret

Pierre de Maret retired from the university in October 2015. A prominent scholar with a worldwide reputation, his scientific contributions to the field of African archaeology could have been celebrated through a Festschrift bringing together an international panel of friends and colleagues. Yet Pierre also dedicated an important part of his academic career to the training and funding of students in African archaeology, many of whom became professional archaeologists and currently occupy academic positions.

A large number of these students had spent time at the Royal Museum for Central Africa, a Belgian federal institution with which Pierre has been associated since the early 1970s. Besides consulting documents and analysing collections, they often sought practical advice for conducting fieldwork in Africa. They asked basic – but critical – questions, to which Pierre’s colleagues and friends tried to provide effective, no-nonsense answers. Through this process, we gradually realised that despite the wealth of books dedicated to African archaeology and to field archaeology, there was no publication specifically devoted to field practice in African archaeology. Keeping that in mind and wanting to celebrate Pierre’s commitment to the tutoring and supervising of young researchers, we decided to edit a Field Manual for African Archaeology, drawing on the expertise of the international community to which Pierre belongs.

This manual is about how to find, excavate and study archaeological sites in sub-Saharan Africa. Obviously, archaeological methods in Africa do not differ from excavations in any other part of the world and any student with an Internet connection will easily find references on how to do things in the field. But knowing about the tool is not the same thing as using it. This is where the experienced professionals contributing to this manual make a difference. Sharing tips, describing possible pitfalls, contextualising field methods and research orientations, they help prospective Africanist archaeologists becoming more knowledgeable and autonomous out in the field.

Readability and ease of access were a crucial issue. First, we wanted the text to be as clear and concise as possible. Hence authors were asked to submit short contributions, avoiding jargon and focussing on essential and straightforward concepts and methods. References were kept to a strict minimum, focussing on key and accessible sources. Second, in order to reach as large an audience as possible, especially in Africa, we chose to publish in French and English and opted for an online open-access format. We also decided to offer each chapter as a separate download, which might prove useful where Internet access is expensive and irregular.

This manual is certainly not perfect. Not all topics could be covered and there are overlaps between chapters, which sometimes correspond to slightly different perspectives or field conditions. Also, the sheer number and diversity of contributors may lead to some stylistic heterogeneity. At the same time, it definitely opens a wider perspective on doing archaeological fieldwork in Africa. The manual might thus best be viewed as a work in progress, liable to evolve in parallel with the field of African archaeology.

On a final note, we would like to thank all the authors involved in this unusual project, as well as the people who helped them directly or indirectly. Special thanks are due to Isabelle Gérard and her team at the Publications Service of the RMCA and to the Belgian Development Cooperation for funding the translations.

To Pierre, with respect and admiration for all he has achieved.
